

Staying constantly connected makes busy days run smoothly

For a smart but more relaxed look the brown leather strap is ideal

“The appeal of being stylishly connected while staying on top of my daily life gives a new allure to wearable technology”

TIME CHECK

With my work I am lucky enough to travel often, but that means my body clock is sometimes out of sync. Happily, my Michael Kors Access smartwatch displays multiple timezones, allowing me to use my iPhone to email and call London at the appropriate time. This is crucial as I need to keep in contact with our sub-editors and art teams to make sure they have everything they need for my Checklist pages – ensuring that I meet my deadline, no matter where I am in the world.

Of course, the aesthetics of my watches and accessories are also very important to me. The beauty of the Michael Kors Access smartwatch is that it not only has interchangeable watch straps, but also customisable watch faces. This means that I can personalise and style it differently every day, depending on my look. My job involves many evening launches and parties, so being able to wear the same watch in different styles is fantastic. Just a quick swap of the strap and swipe of the screen, and I've gone from day to evening in no time at all.

Available at Ernest Jones and select Michael Kors stores, starting at £329

The customisable dials work perfectly in transitioning a look from work to evening